

patientprivacyrights

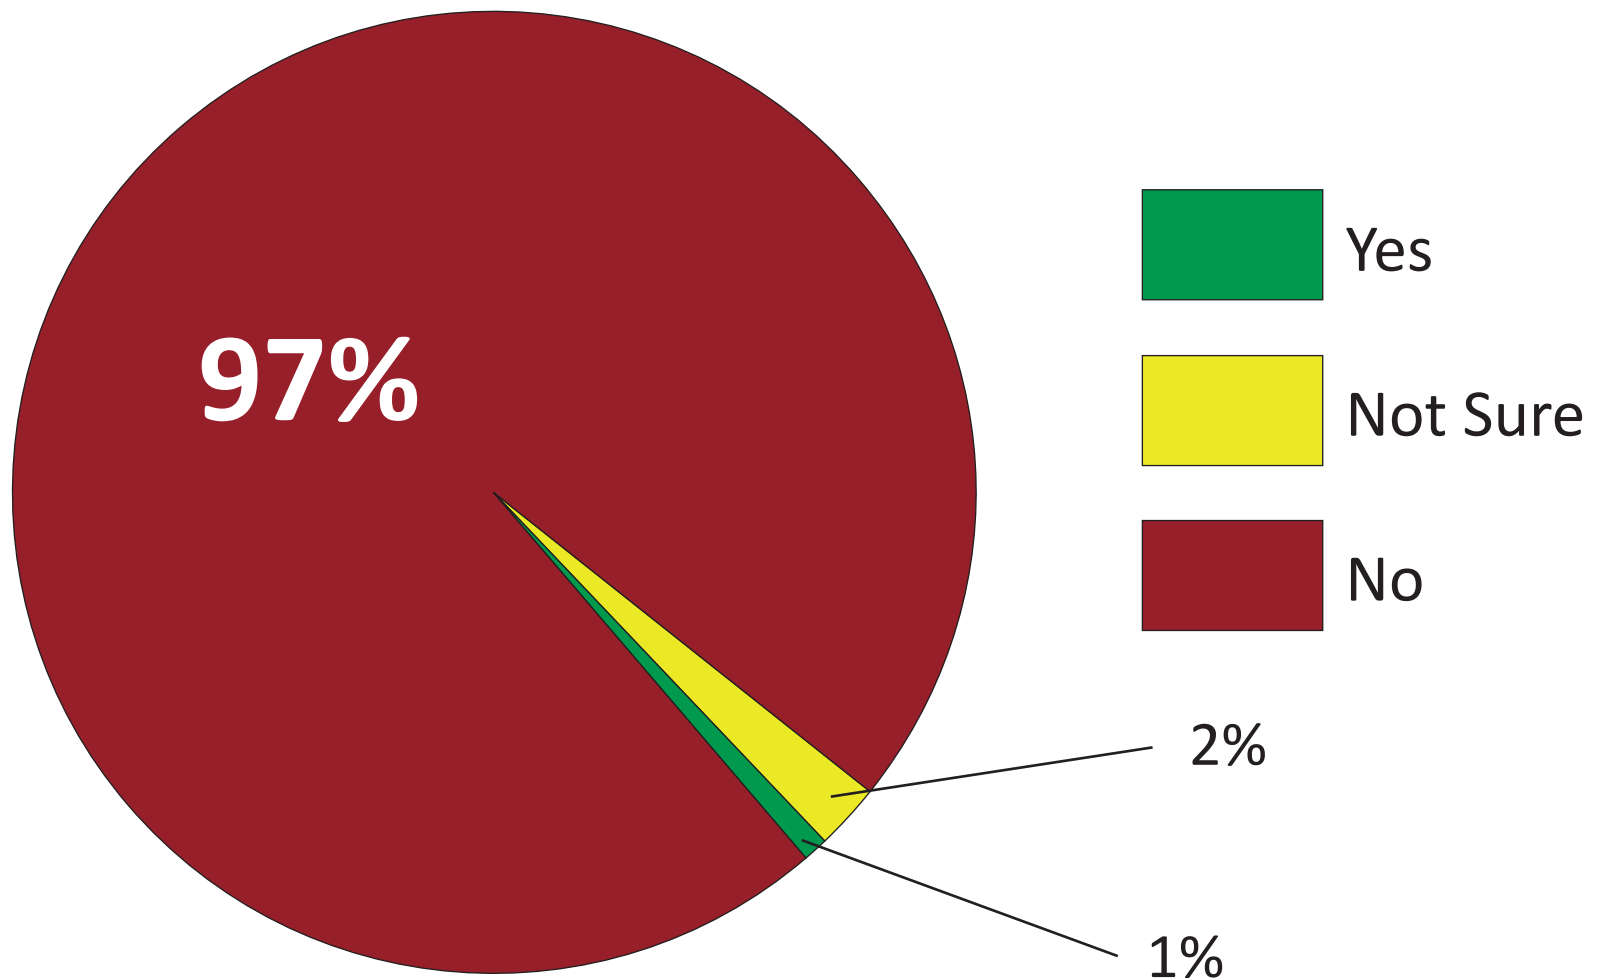

Results From a Zogby International Online Poll

2000 Adults' Views on Privacy, Access to Health Information, and Health Information Technology

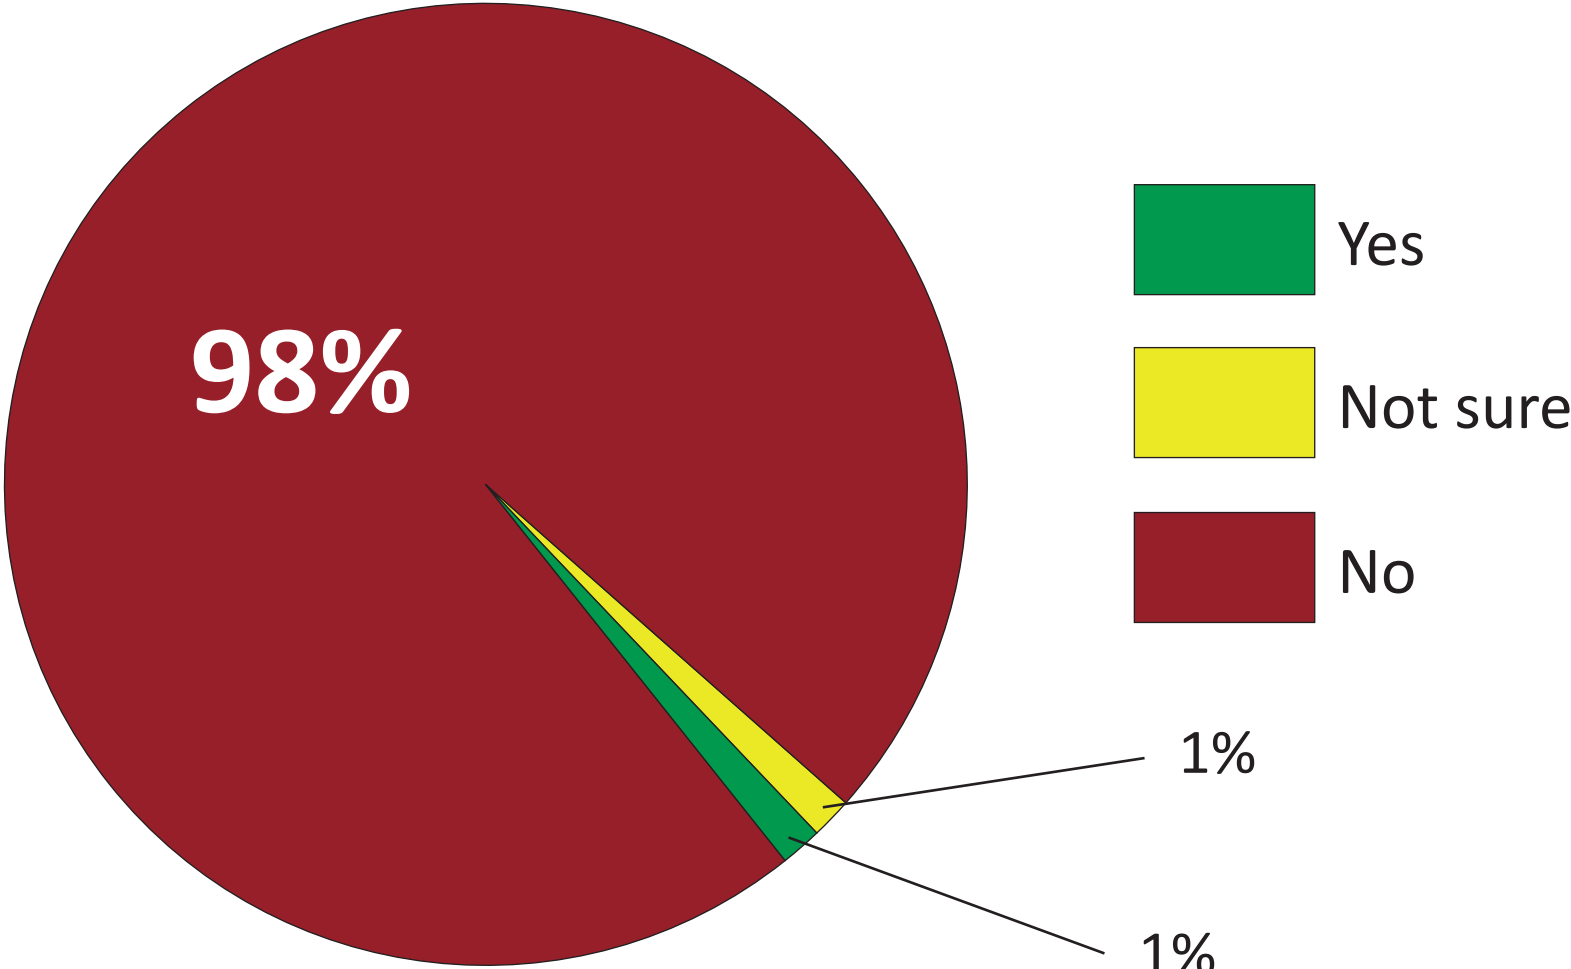

Zogby Interactive Survey of Adults 08/24/10 - 08/26/10 MOE +/- 2.2 Percentage Points

See more at <http://patientprivacyrights.org/patient-privacy-poll/>

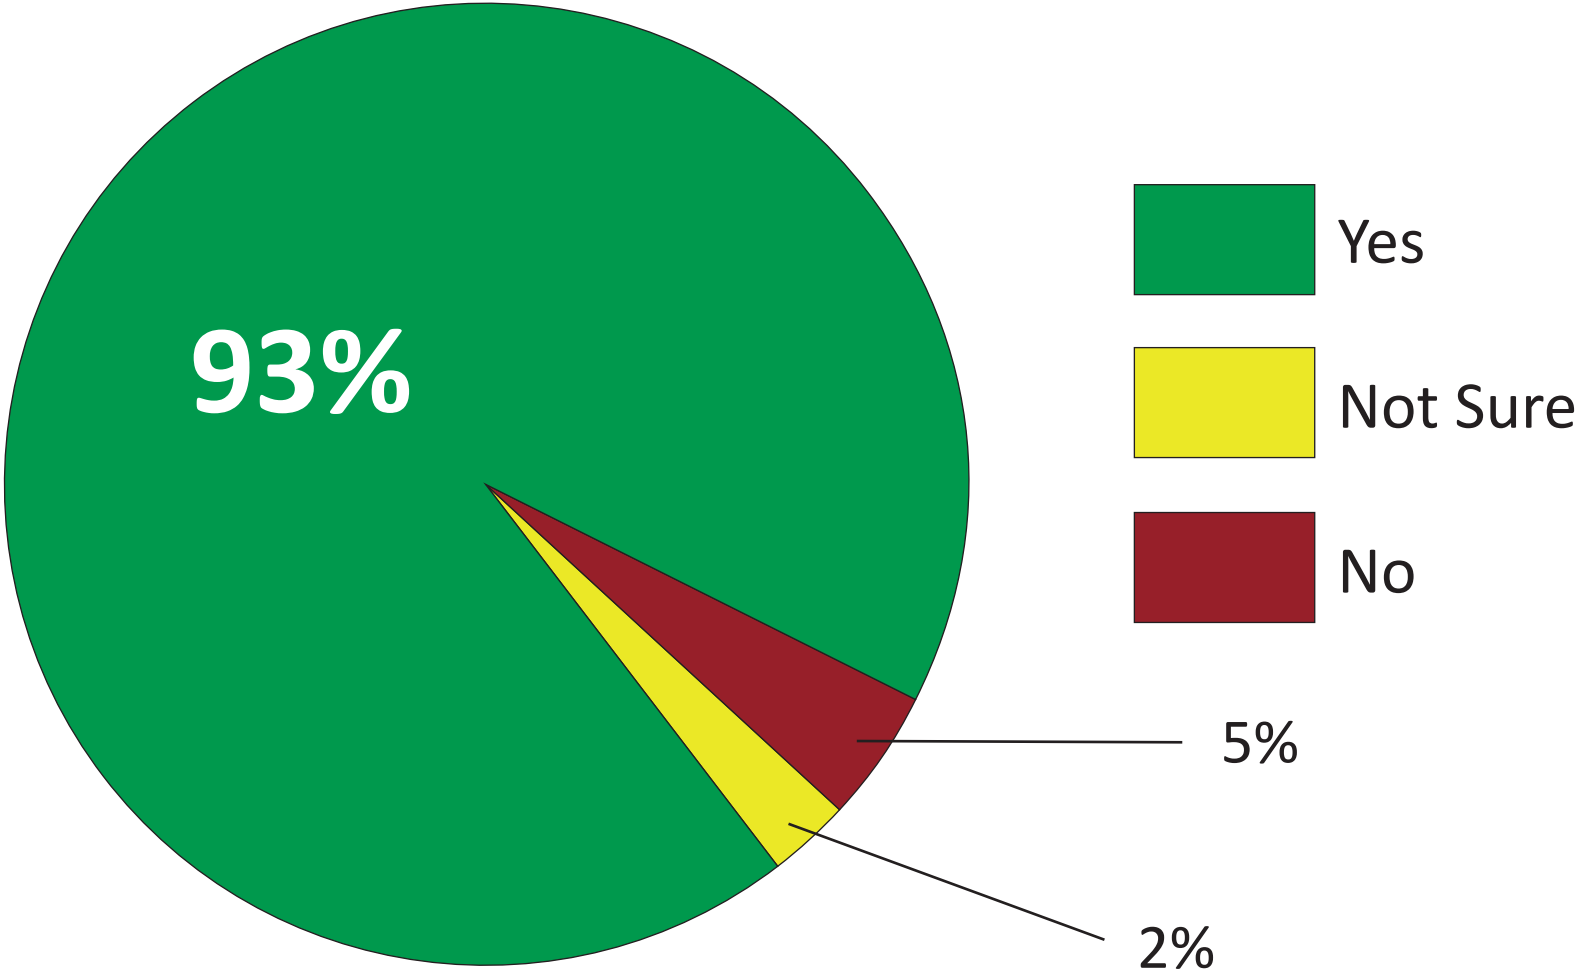

Should doctors, hospitals, labs and health technology systems be allowed to share or sell your sensitive health information without your consent?

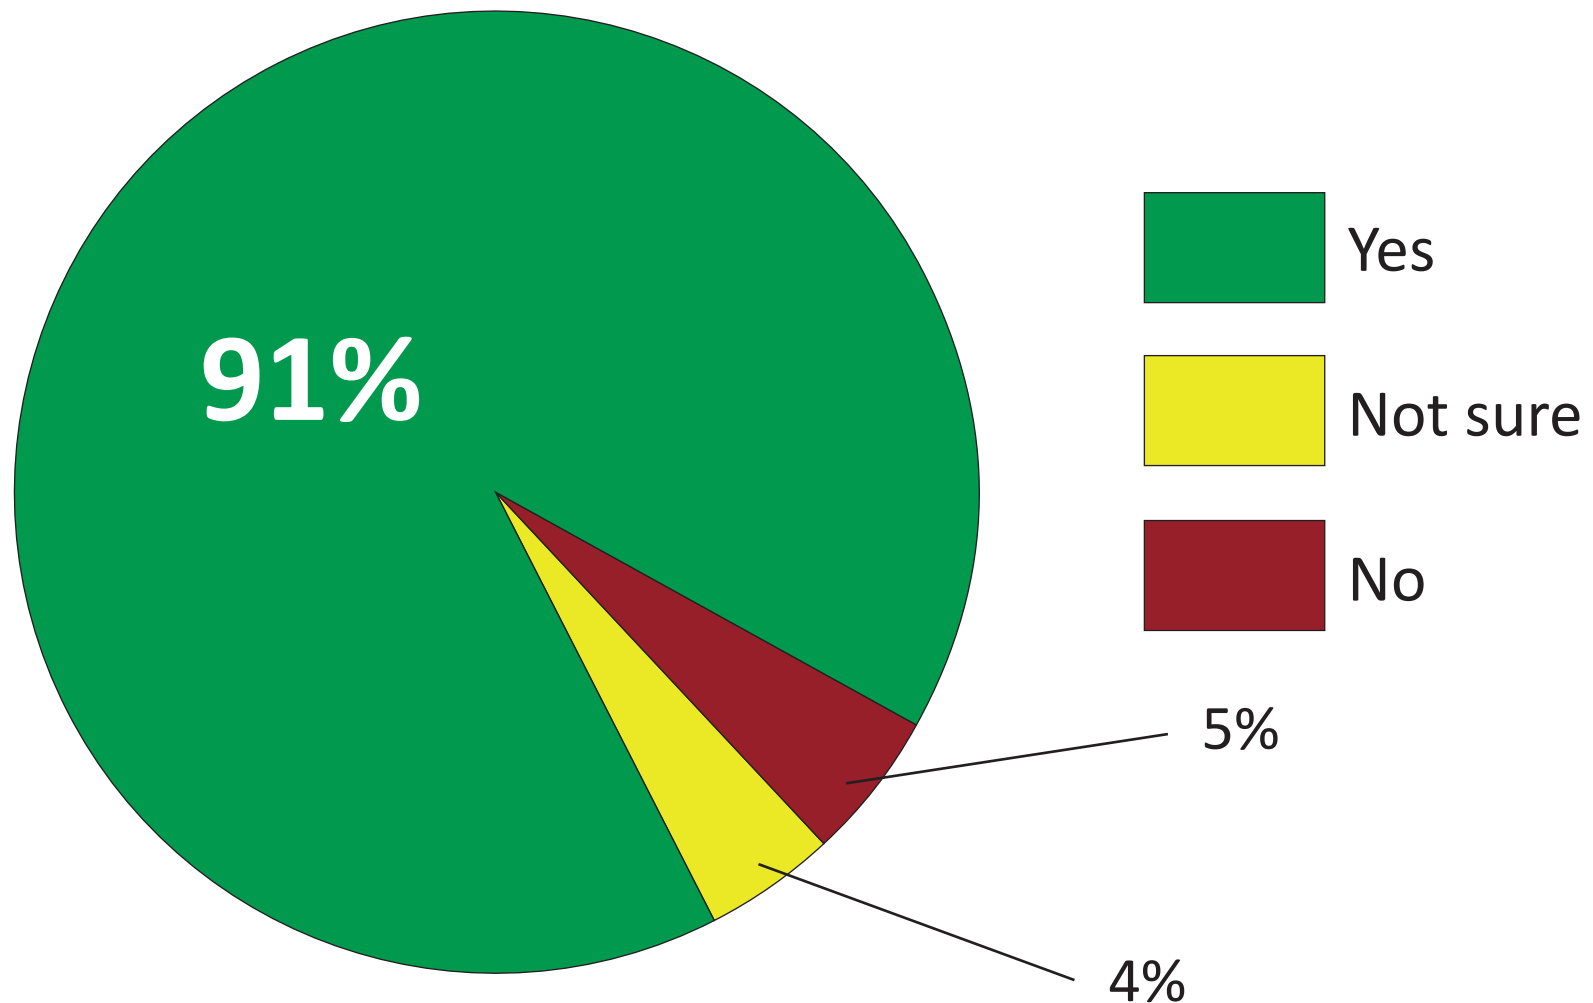

Should insurance companies be allowed to share or sell your health information without your consent?

If you have electronic health records, do you want to decide what companies and government agencies can access them?

When your medical records are kept in electronic systems, would you want to decide which individual people can see and use them?

How likely are you to use a website that allowed you to decide who can see and use all your health information?

Very Likely

Somewhat Likely

Somewhat Unlikely

Very Unlikely

Not Sure

Who should make the decision on whether corporations and researchers can see and use the information in your health records without your permission?

The government through laws and regulations

5%

You personally

87%

Your physician or other medical personnel

5%

Other

1%

Not Sure

2%